Comfortable, Casual and Historic!

t is with great pleasure and enthusiasm that I extend an invitation to visit Southwest Washington and our communities.

Comfortable—What makes our community truly unique is its friendly, hospitable people. Visitors always feel welcome and at home. Throughout every season of the year, you will find exciting events, attractions and recreational opportunities to delight your entire family. We invite you to experience all that Southwest Washington has to offer.

Casual—From hiking and biking to windsurfing, camping, golf and bird watching, Southwest Washington is recreation at its best. The Columbia River Gorge National Scenic Area is home to some of the most spectacular scenery and river activities.

Historic—Our region's rich historical resources abound. Whether you choose to explore the Pearson Air Museum, watch a live reenactment at Fort Vancouver, or experience 1920s Northwest rural life at the Pomeroy Living History Farm, we're sure you'll create memories to last a lifetime.

Southwest Washington is where breathtaking beauty and hometown hospitality harkens back to the days when people had the time, and took the time, to slow down and simply visit ... with their family, their neighbors and, on a good day, themselves.

Enjoy your stay and plan to return soon!

A destination of distinction

estled between the Cascade Mountains and the coast of the Pacific Ocean, Clark County offers a blend of pristine nature and modern living — all the best in camping, hiking, boating, golf, shopping and cultural entertainment. Each of the county's cities has something unique to offer visitors seeking the treasures of the Pacific Northwest.

Vancouver

Clark County's hub

Considered the cornerstone of Pacific Northwest history, Vancouver serves as the hub for all of Clark County. In the state's oldest and fourth largest city, one can find the perfect blend of historically rich heritage and modern growth, with all the benefits of small-town living and all the amenities of a major metropolis.

Whether you're looking to do some specialty shopping or get closer to nature, Vancouver is a city that has it all. It is a city of parks and trails and riverfront recreation. It is a gateway to the Columbia River Gorge and Mount St. Helen's National Volcanic Monument, a day-trip away to Mount Hood or the Pacific Ocean. It is a 10-minute bridge trip to Oregon's City of Roses, Portland.

Take a step back in time with a visit to the National Historic Reserve, the site of Fort Vancouver, Hudson Bay Company's 1825 trading post. Stroll down the tree-lined streets of Officers Row, a neighborhood of grand Victorian homes now rehabilitated to include museums, shops, restaurants and offices in a park-like setting. The Pearson Air Museum, the site of the oldest operating airfield in the United States, offers a look back at aviation history, and nearby Vancouver Barracks provides a military perspective.

If its shopping you're after, Westfield Shoppingtown contains a multitude of shops and department stores. Farmers Market, a seasonal open-air market, is a casual opportunity to browse among local growers and craftspeople and their wares. Main Street is the place for gift and specialty shops and antique hunting. Stop in at the 1930's Kiggins Theater for the latest showing of a favorite movie.

Vancouver maintains a glorious system of trails and bike paths varying from paved to primitive. Take a hike. Vancouver is the most walker-friendly city in the West. Walk or bike-ride along rivers and lakes, through forests and fields. View wildlife in natural wetland habitats.

If manicured greens are more your speed, check out any of the 13 area golf courses.

One of the most spectacular events Vancouver has to offer is its annual Fourth of July fireworks celebration held at Fort Vancouver, the largest display of its kind west of the Mississippi.

Take your time; there is much to see and do. Fishing, biking, windsurfing, swimming, hiking, boating and more, it's right here. With all this city has to offer, your time here will be well-remembered.

Amboy

In the shadow of a volcano

Getting back to nature is easy in this rural community nestled in timber country on the outskirts of Chelatchie Prairie. To celebrate their rustic lifestyle, residents hold an annual gathering, Amboy Territorial Days. Held in July, this event features lawn mower races, axe-throwing competitions, tree-chopping contests, food booths and more.

Lying in the shadow of Mount St. Helens, Amboy residents and guests had a spectacular view of the volcano's eruption on May 18, 1980, and the region's restoration over the last two decades. Mount St. Helens National Monument Headquarters is located in Amboy.

Battle Ground

Destination of choice

Battle Ground got its unlikely name when a skirmish between native Indians and Fort Vancouver soldiers was settled peaceably here in 1855. Its small-town character and historical flavor still thrive in this fast-growing area.

At Fairgrounds Park, volunteers are restoring a 1917 steam engine and rebuilding tracks for the railroad that played a crucial role in the logging and settling of Clark County. Visitors are welcome to watch, learn and help recover this piece of local heritage.

Harvest Days is an annual summer celebration that includes parades, exhibits, food, games, street dances, big-name bands and local talent for lots of old-fashioned fun.

Battle Ground is a gateway to the

Cascade foothills and a world of recreation. Battle Ground Lake State Park (in the crater of an extinct volcano) and Lewisville Park (the state's oldest county park) are just minutes away. Drive a little farther up one of the forks of the Lewis River to find forested lakes with excellent fishing and magnificent views of Mount St. Helens and tranquil Moulton Falls.

Camas-Washougal

Gateway to the Gorge

Camas and Washougal are neighboring cities which form one community east of Vancouver. Situated on the shores of the Columbia River, they serve as the gateway to the Columbia River Gorge National Scenic Area. Described as one of the most beautiful areas in the world, the gorge offers the grandeur of the Columbia and Washougal rivers, as well as river valleys, the foothills of the Cascades and the snow-capped peaks of Mount Hood and Mount St. Helens.

During the summer the community celebrates its history with Camas Days, which includes food booths, arts and crafts, parades, live entertainment, a wine- and microbrew-tasting event and a host of other activities for the entire family. Washougal also celebrates its heritage with its own town festival, Frontier Days.

Downtown Camas centers around a unique downtown area where much of the local historic architecture has been preserved, the landmark Liberty Theater a prime example. Halloween and Christmas are also major celebrations in the old downtown area.

The Port of Camas–Washougal is the site of year-round air, water and industrial facilities, as well as Marina Park and Parker's Landing Historical Park.

Lacamas Lake, just north of Camas, is popular for boating, fishing and swimming. Hiking trails wind through 312 acres in Lacamas Park on adjacent Round Lake.

Visit historic downtown Washougal for a glimpse of its small-town charm. Tours and shopping at the famous Pendleton Woolen Mills are a favorite with visitors.

The Washougal River is a noted fishing spot with the winter and summer steelhead runs and the spring and fall salmon runs. Dougan Falls is a favorite spot along the Washougal River, also popular for swimming and rafting.

National champion motorcycle racing is the premier event at the Washougal Motocross Track. The AMA Nationals are held here the first weekend in August each year.

La Center

A city of quiet distinction

The tiny town of La Center may provide a lifestyle free from the hustle and bustle of the big city, but it also offers unique diversions available nowhere else in the county. Casinos are the big attraction in La Center, promising excitement, entertainment and top-notch restaurants, all within walking distance in the heart of town.

Salishan Vineyards, the only vineyard in Clark County, is just north of town. The winery is noted for its tradition of producing limited-edition, award-winning wines.

With magnificent views of Mount St. Helens and an abundance of recreation at the 12-acre community and wetlands parks, the historic town is an ideal destination for the whole family.

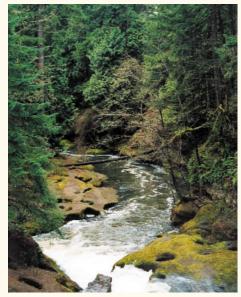

Ridgefield

Your destination for nature

Ridgefield offers unparalleled access to prime examples of the Northwest lifestyle. A small community whose heritage is deeply connected to the water and the land, Ridgefield has unique offerings from local merchants and artisans in its historic downtown.

Community events held annually include the Fourth of July Celebration, Home Town Celebration in December and the Clark County Fair in August.

The Ridgefield National Wildlife Refuge is a 4,000-plus-acre refuge for waterfowl habitat including Canadian geese, tundra swans and ducks. Such birds as the American bald eagle, red-tail hawk, osprey, peregrine, blue heron and sandhill cranes are also familiar sights along foot trails and auto tours.

A day on the Columbia River usually begins in Ridgefield, whose marina and port just blocks from the city center provide the starting point for water enthusiasts.

Yacolt

The best of two worlds

Nestled in the foothills of the majestic Cascade Mountains lies the community of Yacolt. Located northeast of Vancouver, the town's residents reap the benefits of easy metropolitan access and quiet rural living.

Catch a glimpse of rustic 1920s life at the Pomeroy House and Living History Farm which features tours, herb and vegetable gardens and a cozy tea room.

Prime hunting and fishing areas surround Yacolt. The east fork of the Lewis River is only five minutes south of town with some of the best steelhead fishing in the state. Sailing and swimming are enjoyed by many on the lakes. Moulton Falls Park offers almost 400 acres of rivers, creeks, picnic areas, volcanic rock formations and historic Native American meeting grounds. Back roads and trails allow easy access for hikers, campers and horseback riders to scenic mountain areas populated with deer, elk, an occasional bear or cougar and many species of birds.

Georgia-Pacific Mill

401 N.E. Adams St., Camas 360-834-8118

This landmark plant is open for tours only in the summer to witness the creation of paper products from pulp to final goods for such brands as Brawny, Quilted Northern, Vanity Fair and Dixie. Visitors must be 12 years of age or older. Tours run about three hours. Call to arrange tour.

Night Life

Many of the clubs in and around Vancouver may be easy to miss, but they're well worth the search. Café Pacific (The Academy, 400 E. Evergreen Blvd., 360-695-9211) bills itself as an "American Bistro" and the only such non-smoking establishment in the area. It features a blues jam and open mike on Wednesday nights, pop and rock on Fridays, and a mix on Saturdays. Back Alley (6503 E. Mill Plain Blvd., 360-694-6873) has become one of the top blues clubs in the Vancouver-Portland area, with an impressive list of regular performers including Linda Hornbuckle, Andy Stokes, Norman Sylvester, Lloyd Jones and Kenny Blue Ray. The Cascade Tavern & Grill (15000 S.E. Mill Plain Blvd., 360-254-0749) features blues on Tuesday, Friday and Saturday, and rock on Thursday and Sunday. Cascade has earned the Muddy (as in Waters) Award, for best blues venue and best performance of the year. Many of the top blues bands from the Northwest have performed here, as well as national acts on occasion. And there's no place like the Arnada Café (1717 Broadway, 360-750-9596). It features live music every night except Sunday. Tuesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday serve up various bands with sounds ranging from punk, heavy metal and rock, to acoustic and alternative. Clientele ranges in age from 21 to 50. Club 99 (7005 N.E. Highway 99, 360-693-8125) features live classic rock on the weekends and Karaoke during the week. Baby boomers who cut their teeth on '70s and '80s rock will love this place. Call Huckleberry's Books & Coffee (809 Washington St., 360-750-9629) and ask what they're serving up on their menu and in their eclectic shop that offers special classes as well as music, theater and poetry nights.

Spots are springing up all over, especially in the central downtown area, including relaxed and casual Chicago Blues, Pizza Blues and Chronis' Restaurant & Lounge.

The town of La Center is the place to go if you're feeling lucky and ready to take a chance at a game of cards. La Center has four card rooms lining its downtown main street, Northwest Pacific Highway. Try the Double Down Saloon & Casino, Palace Casino, the Last Frontier and the New Phoenix Casino, all within walking distance of each other. Drive north on Interstate 5 to the La Center exit, number 16.

xperience Northwest history by strolling through a splendidly tranquil environment, the Vancouver National Historic Reserve. Share in the greatest Fourth of July celebration west of the Mississippi. Imagine yourself living in 1825 as the Hudson's Bay Company establishes its headquarters at Fort Vancouver, situated near the banks of the powerful Columbia River with majestic Mount Hood rising above it.

Today the Historic Reserve remains to tell you its story and share its many treasures. Visit us often. You will leave feeling informed, refreshed and delighted.

Fort Vancouver National Historic Site

www.nps.gov/fova

Operated by the National Park Service, the Hudson's Bay Company trading post allows you to experience mid-19th century life. The bustling fort was the center of political, cultural and commercial activities in the Pacific Northwest. See the blacksmiths at work, the fur warehouse and the Chief Factor's house. The nearby Visitor's Center contains exhibits and the Trading Post offers historical gifts. Plan to participate in many special events such as the Candlelight Tour in September.

Fort Vancouver is open daily, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. from March through October, and 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. from November to February. Call 360-696-7655, ext. 17, for information.

The Smithsonian Institution called it "the last remaining pre-World War II airfield in the United States." The 23,500-square-foot museum documents the aviation history of local air space. View antique aircraft, exhibits commemorating the area's flight history and an interactive children's museum. Guided tours are available as well as an extensive aviation gift shop. Don't miss the annual August antique aircraft fly-in.

Visit Tuesday through Sunday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Officers Row

In 1849, U.S. Army troops were dispatched to Vancouver to establish a post just north of the Hudson's Bay Company. Construction of the barracks and officers' housing began at that time. Stroll down the tree-lined street and you'll find 22 remaining houses that have been rehabilitated and listed on the National Historic Register. Three houses are open to the public — O.O. Howard House, Grant House and Marshall House; the others are private residences and businesses. Situated just south of Officers Row sits Vancouver Barracks, a U.S. Army base established in 1849.

Begin your walk at the O.O. Howard House on the west end of the Row. Named after General Oliver Otis Howard, who was responsible for Howard University and the Freedman's Bureau, it was home to the General and his family in the late 1870s. National Park Service guides offer historic talks and walks which detail daily military life. Reflect on the outstanding exhibit, One Place Across Time, which chronicles the history of the area.

The O.O. Howard House is open daily 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., March through October, and 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., November through February. Call 360-992-1820 for information.

Also located on site is the Center for Columbia River History. For information on its free public education programs, call 360-992-1821 or visit them at www.ccrh.org.

Walking east from the O.O. Howard House, visit the Grant House, home and headquarters for the first commanding officer of Vancouver Barracks. Its lovely double verandah may deceive you, for beneath it (and the siding) is a hand-hewn log house. Although he never lived there, the house is named for former President Ulysses S. Grant, who was stationed at the Barracks in 1852–1853. Today the house is a lively gathering place for folk art exhibits and workshops. The Grant House Gallery sells splendid works by regional artists. The Grant House is open Monday through Saturday, 11 a.m. to 8:30 p.m. Call 360-694-5252 for details. The Grant House Restaurant offers fine dining daily in the historic setting. Call 360-696-1727 for lunch, Sunday brunch or dinner reservations.

Continuing east, discover the crown jewel of Officers Row, the Marshall House, built in 1886 for the commander of the Department of the Columbia. It is named for General George C. Marshall who resided there 1936-1938. The General, recipient of the 1953 Nobel Peace Prize, is honored annually with Celebrate Freedom programs. The house is a shining example of Queen Anne Victorian style architecture. Stop by for a tour and to view exhibits. The Marshall House is open Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., and on some weekends. For information, call 360-693-3103 or visit at www.ci.vancouver.wa.us.

f it can be done outdoors, chances are it can be done at its best here in Southwest Washington. This region of The Evergreen State promises to satisfy your appetite for adventure, offering grand opportunities for every outdoor activity conceivable: hiking, biking, swimming, golf, windsurfing, camping, boating, kayaking, fishing, picnicking, skiing, snow-boarding and other outdoor sports. We promise you there is something for everybody who enjoys exploring.

Must See

A few of the most popular "must see" attractions deliver the very best Mother Nature has to offer.

Take a river cruise on the Columbia River for the perfect perspective of Washington and Oregon's border. Try the elegant Portland Spirit (110 S.E. Caruthers, Portland, Ore., 503-224-3900, 800-224-3901), which offers a variety of cruises year round including meals and moonlight dances. Sternwheelers, old-fashioned two- and three-deck paddlewheeldriven ships offer sightseeing, meals and theme cruises on the Columbia and Willamette Rivers. Try The Sternwheeler Rose (6211 N. Ensign, Portland, Ore., 503-286-7673) or the Sternwheeler Columbia Gorge & Marine Park (1200 N.W. Naito Parkway Ave., Portland, Ore., 503-223-3928).

Ridgefield National Wildlife Refuge (301 N. 3rd Ave., Ridgefield, northwest of Vancouver) is about 5,000 acres of migratory and winter habitat for hundreds of species of wildlife. Enjoy a 4-mile auto tour open year round, or a 2-mile walking trail open March through September. This area serves as a sanctuary for beaver, deer, otter, great blue heron, sandhill cranes, geese and many other species of birds. 360-887-4106.

The Steigerwald Lake National Wildlife Refuge (east of Washougal along Highway 14) is a 900-acre bird sanctuary where more than 3,000 Canadian geese have made their winter home in lake and river bottom lands. 509-427-5208.

The Gifford Pinchot National Forest comprises more than a million acres of forest and wilderness ranging from the Columbia River and the crest of the Cascades to Mount Rainier National Park, and includes mountains, campgrounds, trails and lakes for the best in hiking, climbing, camping, horseback riding and skiing. Mount St. Helens sits within its borders. Spectacular trails that range from comfortable to challenging can be found less than an hour's drive from Vancouver. Enjoy wildlife, waterfalls, camping, giant old-growth trees, rocky peaks and panoramic views in the Mount Adams, Indian Heaven or Trapper Creek Wilderness areas. Other popular trails include Lewis River, Lower Falls Creek and Siouxon. 360-891-5000.

The Columbia River Gorge National Scenic Area begins just east of Washougal. Follow Highway 14 for a leisurely trip up the gorge and stop at Beacon Rock State Park, Bonneville Dam, Bridge of the Gods, Skamania Lodge, the Columbia Gorge Interpretive Center and Carson Mineral Hot Springs. 541-386-2333.

A major restoration project by local citizens, the Chelatchie Prairie Railroad is set to resume excursions from Battle Ground through Yacolt to Chelatchie Prairie. The first excursion is scheduled for Memorial Day 2001. Contact the Battle Ground Chamber of Commerce for more information. 360-687-1510.

Vancouver's Waterfront Park and Trail (off Highway 14's exit 1 on Columbia Way) is the route for plenty of sightseeing, picnicking and beachcombing. Recently developed and expanded, the area is planned as a thriving destination for walkers, boaters, cyclists, shoppers and vacationers, stretching from downtown's Esther Short Park east to Wintler Park. 360-696-8173.

Parks and Recreation

Although Clark County has an abundance of parks, not all parks are created equal. For more information about Southwest Washington's parks, go online to www.co.clark.wa.us or www.nps.gov or www.parks.wa.gov/parkpage. To contact Vancouver—Clark Parks and Recreation, call 360-696-8171.

Here are a few parks that offer more than just a swing set.

Trails

According to local walking and hiking enthusiasts, Clark County enjoys a year-round walkable climate and a trail system that promotes access to environmental education, historic interpretation and public arts amid the Pacific Northwest's glorious landscape.

Here are some trail locations to get your feet pointed in the right direction.

Columbia River Waterfront Trail is a four-mile, 14-foot-wide paved waterfront trail that follows the Columbia River. Along the way, it passes Waterfront Park, the Renaissance Promenade and the plaza dedicated to Ilchee, a Native Indian chief's daughter. The Water Resources Education Center is along this trail, as well as the Old Apple Tree, Marine Park wetlands and the Kaiser Viewing Tower and Shipyards.

Burnt Bridge Trail crosses a 13-foot bridge over a creek at Beaver Marsh Park. This heavily wooded trail begins at the end of 98th Avenue off Burton Road in Vancouver.

Discovery Trail combines four trails from Fruit Valley Road to Douglas Park. Stewart Glen Trail meanders through thick forests and grass bottom lands over bridges to Hazel Dell Avenue. The Leverich Park to Bagley Park Trail runs along Burnt Bridge Creek through forests and grasslands. The Fourth Plain Trail follows the Bonneville Power Administration's power line through Meadow Homes Neighborhood Park to Devine Road. Blandford Drive Trail is a dirt forest trail with a steep grade through Blandford Drive canyon from MacArthur Boulevard.

Ellen Davis Trail, covered by crushed rock, follows the Burnt Bridge Creek through the Bonneville Power Administration gardens, along manicured grounds of the JD Ross Substation Complex and through a forested buffer zone in the Minnehaha area. It connects Discovery Trail with St. James Road.

Heisen Trails start at the Heisen Bridge by N.E. Lucia Falls Road, a tree-lined drive bordering the east fork of the Lewis River to Moulton Falls County Park and on to the historic town of Yacolt.

Lacamas Trails at Lacamas Park in Camas offer superb opportunities, paved and primitive, to view birds, rock formations and water falls along with picnicking stops and a children's play center.

La Center Bridge Interpretive Trail

follows the dike on the east fork of the Lewis River, offering a bird's eye view of La Center Bottoms wildlife. The trail runs on the east side of the La Center Bridge and is dotted with interpretive signs and wildlife blinds. 360-735-8839.

Lewis River Trail, 13.5 miles long, passes three major waterfalls along a low-elevation valley bottom. The trailhead is located at Curly Creek Falls and has restrooms, viewing areas and is barrier-free for wheel-chair access. The trailhead can be reached by following Forest Service Hwy 90 at the east end of Swift Reservoir.

Salmon Creek Greenway Trail winds around wildlife interpretive areas, wetlands and ponds, duck nesting boxes and restored habitat. The trail extends from Cougar Creek to Felida Bridge, and is accessible from Felida Bridge or the Klineline Regional Park and Swimming Area. 360-735-8839.

Trapper Creek Wilderness is the closest pristine wilderness area to Vancouver. Its 6,000 acres includes a number of geological and ecological types of terrain including old-growth Douglas fir forests, rocky peaks, huckleberry fields and high meadows with seasonal wild flowers. 360-891-5001.

Columbia River Gorge & Cruises

The majestic Columbia River carved out the Gorge over millions of years. You can enjoy the splendor by car or boat. Clark County sits on the banks of the Columbia, and all the beauty of nature awaits you just east of the county. Drive Hwy 14 east.

Mount St. Helens

The power that caused the top of this live volcano to erupt and blow off one-third of the mountain can be viewed close up by driving and hiking. Witness the awe-inspiring blast zone, left intact for nature to reclaim. Head north on Interstate 5.

Pacific Ocean Coast

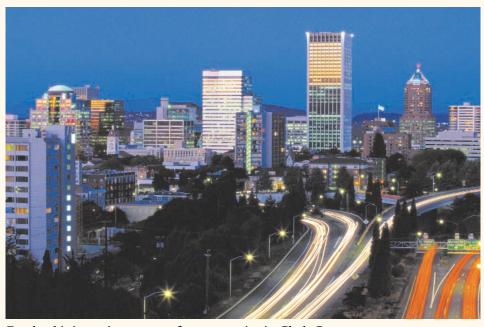

The Pacific Ocean coastline in Washington and Oregon provides one of the most spectacular shorelines in North America. From rugged, rocky terrain to forests and small villages, this is one site you won't want to miss.

Rafting & Wind Surfing

The Columbia River and other area tributaries provide a wide array of water sports. For those who enjoy adventure, consider a rafting trip through raging rivers. For the more sports-minded, the Columbia River Gorge, just east of Vancouver and near Hood River, Oregon, provides a perfect place to wind surf. Hood River is fast becoming one of the world's most popular wind-surfing spots. And it's only about one hour east of Clark County.

Wineries

Both Washington and Oregon have begun to establish a reputation for their awardwinning wines. Because the valleys between the coastal and Cascade mountain ranges are composed of volcanic soil, maintain a temperate climate year round and winters are wet while summers are dry, this area rivals Northern California. Just 30 to 45 minutes southeast of Vancouver and Portland is Oregon's Washington County, a suburban area that has a large cluster of wineries. A wine loop is posted on highway signs and many of the vintners have tasting rooms and gift shops.

Growing from 10 to more than 155 wineries in the past 25 years, Washington now ranks second in wine production in the United States. The state has four officially recognized wine-producing regions, Columbia Valley, Puget Sound, Walla Walla Valley and Yakima Valley. Call the Washington Wine Commission at 206-667-9463 or log on to www.washington-wine.org for more information.

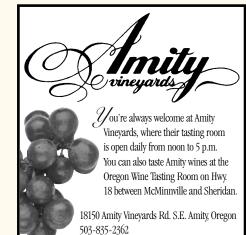

Portland

Known as the City of Roses, Portland is a great day trip. Enjoy some of the coffee houses downtown, visit the area's only zoo in Washington Park, or tour the Pittock Mansion overlooking Portland and the Cascade Mountain range. Portland is a quick 10 minutes from Vancouver. Contact the Portland Visitor's Bureau, 877-678-5263.

Visit Pacific Ocean beaches, just about 70 miles west of Vancouver.

Ghost Stories

Every Fall around Halloween, in Vancouver National Historic Reserve, the past comes back to haunt the community. This unique event, held this year on October 20, 2001, is interactive theater, with small ensembles spinning stories on porches, grounds and drawing rooms of the stately Victorian homes on Officers Row near downtown Vancouver.

Every year children and adults attend to hear stories, witness mock funeral processions, enjoy an afterlife game show, and partake in hay rides, among other ghoulish activities created through collaboration among many local theater groups, students and heritage volunteers.

About the Área Explore Clark County in southwest Washington

isiting a new area brings up a lot of questions. What is the weather like? How many people live in that region? Who do I contact in case of an emergency? What about road conditions? All these questions and more are conveniently answered for you, right here.

Location

Clark County is located by the Columbia River in southwest Washington, about 70 miles from the Pacific Ocean. The Columbia River forms the western and southern boundaries of the county and provides more than 41 miles of river frontage. Portland, Oregon, is about a 15-minute drive from most areas of Clark County. The spectacular Columbia River Gorge National Scenic Area lies 30 minutes to the east. Seattle is 164 miles north. San Francisco is 640 miles to the south. From the Vancouver urban hub on the Columbia, the county spreads through a rapidly growing suburban band, across agricultural lands and a network of cities and towns, to the foothills of the Cascade Mountain range. Beautiful Mount Hood rises majestically to the east and powerful Mount St. Helens lies to the north.

Population

Vancouver, the fourth largest city in Washington, is home to approximately 135,100 people. The current population of the county is 337,000. Most of the population is employed in the service and retail industries; manufacturing and government follow as major employers.

Sources: Columbia River Economic Development Council, National Weather Service, and the City of Vancouver.

Weather

The weather in the Pacific Northwest is always a favorite topic of conversation. In southwest Washington, weather conditions vary widely between ridges and valleys, and even from town to town. Vancouver enjoys mild weather with less average rainfall each year than Boston, Washington, D.C., or Atlanta. Seasons are distinct. Summer temperatures generally climb into the 80s. Winter nights rarely fall below 30 degrees Fahrenheit. The moderate climate results in lush forests and foliage with an abundance of color and fragrance in the spring with blossoming trees and shrubs.

Clark County lies within the Willamette Valley, a geographic basin formed by the Cascade and Pacific Coast mountain ranges. This location influences the climate and produces wet, mild winters and moderately dry summers. The region receives about 70 percent of its annual precipitation of 41 inches between the months of November and March. The average annual snowfall is 6.5 inches

The annual average temperature is 61 degrees Fahrenheit. Maximum temperatures for the area range from 45 to 59 degrees from January to April with minimums between 31 and 39 degrees. The mercury rises to 65 degrees by May, and from June to August, Clark County enjoys summers with average high temperatures of 71 to 79 degrees with lows of 43 to 51 degrees through October. The area cools from 63 degrees to 45 degrees from October to December and experiences lows of 37 to 32 degrees. The annual minimum temperature is 41 degrees and residents enjoy walking and other outdoor exercise despite the rainy season. The moderate weather offers year-round beauty and enjoyment.

Transportation

Vancouver and Clark County are a hub for Pacific Northwest transportation routes, crossroads for Interstate 5, airports, railways, bus lines and ports. Interstate 5 connects Washington, Oregon and California all the way to Mexico. Below is some information to help get you where you want to go.

Airports

Portland International Airport is 15 minutes from downtown Vancouver and easily accessed from U.S. Interstate highways 5 and 205 off the Airport Way exit. For general information, call 1-877-739-4636. Contact your airlines directly for flight information.

Three airfields in Clark County accommodate private aircraft:

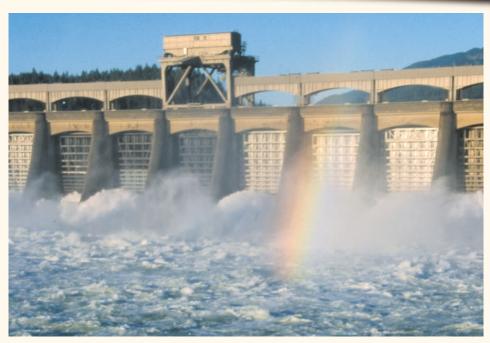

Pearson Field, near downtown Vancouver—call 360-735-9441

Evergreen Airport, in east county—call 360-892-2155

Grove Field, near the Camas/Washougal Port—call 360-834-2744

Rail

Vancouver's passenger station and depot is at the base of West 11th Street near the downtown area. The refurbished historical site was built in the early 1900s. For Amtrak reservations and schedule information, call 800-872-7245.

An interesting day trip, Bonneville Dam, situated 40 miles east of Vancouver, was built in 1937 and produces power for much of the Pacific Northwest.

Bus Service

Fare and schedule information for the national Greyhound Bus Line is available by calling 800-231-2222. The local terminal is at 613 Main St., Vancouver. Call 360-696-0186 for information.

Public Transportation

C-Tran, the county's public bus service, has routes covering Clark County and connecting into Portland. C-Tran also offers curb-to-curb service for people who are unable to use regular service, as well as carpool and bike and vanpool services. Four transit centers and four park-and-ride facilities serve the area. Contact C-Tran Customer Service at 360-695-0123. For information about Portland's public transit system, call Tri-Met at 503-238-7433 and the MAX light rail service at 503-238-7433.
